FUTUREPLACES is a meeting of people with one question in mind: if digital media can do so much for global communication, knowledge and creativity, how can it contribute to local cultural development? October 2008 marked the start of this challenge. After the success of prior editions, where we surveyed current successful projects from very diverse backgrounds and fields of knowledge, and rehearsed strategic approaches, we will dedicate FUTUREPLACES 2012 to interpreting our heritage and preparing what’s ahead in these times of great changes.
